Lafferty competency hearing to continue

By LESLIE M. GANDOLA
University Staff Writer

The public was barred from the courtroom Tuesday during a competency hearing for Ronald Lafferty in the 4th District Court.

Judge J. Robert Bullock set the hearing because of possible evidence that would need to be excluded, said Pauline Shear, attorney for the Society of Professional Journalists. However, "There were no such exclusions," Shear said.

The one-hour hearing was continued until today at 3 p.m. Bullock is expected to make the decision as to the Lafferty's competency today or Thursday morning. If the Lafferty's defense is not competent, trial would begin Monday, said Shear.

Nasli T. Wootton, Utah County attorney, told reporters the judge's decision will be based on the Lafferty's competency to stand trial and in their own defense and those themselves.

The Laffertys have been under psychiatric observation since Sept. 22 mostly at Wootton. Wootton requested their competency be determined since the brothers have refused legal counsel.

The Laffertys are charged with the 1978 killings of Brenda and Eric Lafferty.

Eighteen individuals were subpoenaed for the hearing including President Ezra Taft Benson of the LDS Church, Presiding Bishop Dallin H. Oaks, Presiding Bishop Pro-Tem Robert S. Sugden and Joseph Dimick, 4th District Judge George E. Ballif, members of the School Board, Mayor W. W. and Chief Utah County Deputy Attorney Wayne Watson. Also subpoenaed by the Laffertys was Tracy Vaides, an inmate at the Utah County jail.

"I think we should have the hearing at the courthouse instead of here," said Ron Lafferty, who was rushed from the building by sheriff's deputies. "I think we should have something to say about that."

"The court is authorized to exclude all persons not necessary for the conduct of justice," he said, quoting from the Utah State Code.

Closing a competency hearing, however, gives extraordinary authority to a judge, and "at my personal judgment, there is yet to be a hearing that should be closed" because of possibly biasing a jury, he added.

Shea held arguments with Bullock to open the hearing to the press. Although the hearing was not opened, Shear was admitted to the courtroom after agreeing to be bound by the secrecy of the proceedings.

Shea said he made a motion to release the records to the public in their entirety. "I think we have a good chance of that being obtained," he said.

"It makes me nervous when something like this comes up . . . and the press is surprised," said Wootton. "I don't think it (press coverage) makes a bit of difference." It might add credibility, he said.

Shea added he has never had trouble with it in his 14 years in office.

Board says military leader involved in Aquino's death

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — In a sharply worded statement issued Wednesday, an investigative board accused the Philippines' highest military commander, 24 other military men and one civilian in the "premeditated killing" of opposition leader Benigno Aquino.

"We have also classified as evidence proves the complicity of (chief of staff) Gen. Fabian C. Ver," read board attorney Bienvenido Santos from the rapport, as more than 300 onlookers in a government auditorium applauded.

The report, reflecting the opinions of four of the five board members, was given to President Ferdinand E. Marcos. Ver is a close associate and distant relative of Marcos.

"It's over to the president now," said corporate lawyer Lucio Salazar, a member of the board.

Marco did not talk to reporters, who were barred from the meeting in contrast to formal ceremonies broadcast live on national television Tuesday when board chairman Lt. Col. Corazon Aquino handed Marcos her much-anticipated report.

Mrs. Aquino's 2½-page report exonerated Ver and accused air force Brig. Gen. Luther Custodio and six soldiers of plotting Aug. 21, 1983, killing of Marcos' chief rival in the 1981 election from three years' voluntary exile in the United States.

Marcos said Tuesday he accepted Mrs. Aquino's report as the panel's final report and immediately ordered Custodio and the six soldiers confined to quarters pending trial.

Ver was shot to death by alleged communist agent Rolando Galman.

Reporters asked board member Gen. Santos, before the start of the hearing, if the majority reported received from participating both in a conspiracy and an attempt to cover it up. Santos replied "yes" to both questions.

Mrs. Aquino said she split with the other board members because they concluded Ver was among the plotters, and she integrity."

Mees and Webster said the court's decisions would make police officers' jobs easier, and guilty criminals would not go free.

"To continue this momentum, we must maintain and advance the highest level of professionalism and integrity," Webster said, adding the court may rescind the ruling if a show-good-faith effort is made.

Webster said the FBI will begin a one-week officers' training program at its Quantico, Va., academy next month to ensure police officers are properly trained.

Webster was one of a half-dozen speakers addressing an estimated 5,000 delegates from the United States and some 30 nations attending the convention.

Webster said crime rates declined in the past two years, the first time in U.S. history that such a trend has been seen. This so-called re-birth statistic for the first six months of 1984 will show a routine decline, he said.

In videotaped remarks to the convention, President Reagan recognized that statistics do decrease in crime to changes made since he took office. "This statistic does demonstrate our administration's efforts . . . in finally having an effect," Reagan said.

Reagan said, "The most Americans had to suffer the effects of crime while too many of our families are stuck with old, discredited liberal illusions about crime and punishment," he said.

Another area that requires more attention is prevention of the sexual exploitation of our children. These reprehensible crimes require a coordinated response from law enforcement agencies.

Webster said the FBI has persuaded the U.S. Postal Service and U.S. Customs officials to intercept shipments of child pornography from other countries and the FBI will continue to give priority to these cases.

When the bureau finds evidence of child abuse, Webster said, the agency will tip local police officers.

"We want to work to end the terrible abuse to America's greatest resource," Webster said.

In Monday's speech, Meese called for eliminating the "bane of law enforcement officers." Decades later, Meese said, the Supreme Court extended it to actions taken by state and local authorities.

"We've experimented with the exclusion rule and it just doesn't work," Meese said. "Only guilty criminals benefit from the exclusion rule."

Crime rates declined in the past two years — the first time in U.S. history there has been a two-year decline.

— William H. Webster

Director of FBI

Miller, a graduate of BYU, was excommunicated from the LDS Church shortly before his arrest last month by FBI agents.

"I have great doubt there is any substance to the allegations," Webster said. "Religion is not a qualification for position in the FBI."

He said the FBI would continue to recruit professional agents at BYU, adding the bureau values former Mormon missionaries for their foreign language skills, international awareness and "dedication to the cause."

"The FBI chief said law enforcement agencies now have more respect from American citizens than was the case in the 1960s and 1970s."

"This record has come the hard way — it was earned," Webster said.

Webster said the FBI has initiated several programs that will enable law enforcement agencies to cooperate better

CIA orders recall on manual written for rebel activity

WASHINGTON (AP) — The CIA has ordered a "full recall" of its classified manual on how to use violence to "neutralize" government officials, the spy agency has told Congress.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., a Senate Intelligence Committee member, learned of the recall by CIA officials Monday night. A committee source said the CIA also mentioned the recall at a full-scale briefing of the panel earlier Monday.

Leahy said the CIA, in ordering a "full recall," is telling agents to destroy the original manual and not to ignore it.

Leahy said the rebels are instructed to bring another book containing a code of conduct that reflects traditional guidelines of war.

Leahy said the agency insisted on anonymity, said he was told the agency was trying to recover all thousand printed copies of three versions of the manual. He said only about two dozen of the original unclassified edition remain in existence, with about 12 in Washington and 12 in Central America. He said one of those originals was obtained by The Associated Press.

During Monday's briefing, CIA officials told members of Congress that some deletions were made from the original version of the manual. One, he said, was that all editions — including one approved at CIA headquarters — contained references to using violence to "neutralize" Nixonian government officials.

President Reagan had asserted during Sunday's presidential debate that pages dealing with assassination were removed. He added that 12 copies of the original with the reference to such violent acts "some way . . . got out down there."

Reagan said the original manual was the work of a CIA contract employee in Central America, but that when it was turned over to his CIA superiors, "a number of pages were removed" that agency head there . . . and he sent it up to him at CIA, where more pages were excised before it was printed.

Meanwhile, in Green Bay, Wis., Vice President George Bush said he expects the president ultimately "take the lead" in the debate about the manual.

He added that "neutralize" could mean various things. "Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., who attended the CIA briefing, said the word 'neutralize' is subject to various interpretations, but added that when read in context, "it could lead one to the conclusion that the president's policy (barring assassination) was not on the record when it was breached."

"Neutralize" not defined in the manual but references to "danger to other individuals in the area of the target" and to assessing likely replacements suggest that the goal is to remove the officials physically.

CIA spokeswoman Patti Volz continued to refuse to comment on the manual.

President Reagan has prohibited the Ford administration from publishing orders dating back to the Ford administration that prohibit U.S. government involvement in assassination, but as in the latest intelligence guidelines approved by Reagan on Dec. 4, 1981, the word is not defined.

3rd District candidates clash over budget, military

By LAURA CHILDERS
Senior Reporter

Ronald Reagan's policies on the federal budget and military were the issues contested Tuesday when Utah's 3rd Congressional District candidates met in a debate before the Provo Chamber of Commerce.

Democratic candidate Bruce Baird, who is running against Republican Rep. Jim Hansen, said Hansen's budget would add more than 40 points in the polls, although there is plenty of blame for the nation's budget deficit to share. Both major parties, the Reagan administration largely responsible.

"If (Reagan) wants a balanced budget, why doesn't he propose a balanced budget? You can't claim the Democrats for that one, folks," Baird said.

Baird said he would push for the deficit to be reduced by cutting social spending, including defense spending, by one-third, if he becomes president.

Nuclear weapons funding would be the area he would cut from the defense budget. "We couldn't fight a war for 10 years, half-assed, and run out of fuel," he said. "You don't just let the Pentagon take a Christmas wish list. Let them throw darts at it and give them everything they want," Baird said.

"He hasn't been a president since 1983 who has submitted a balanced budget," Nielsen countered.

The Republican said he would propose a balanced budget and eliminate the deficit by reducing the budget deficit.

"We could probably have a strong defense with considerably less money," he said. "I would propose a freeze on the current defense budget, allowing increases only to compensate for inflation."

In contrast to Nielsen, Baird opposed establishing a nuclear waste site in Utah.

"The people who oppose it is a nuclear dump and the people who support it call it a nuclear repository," Nielsen said.

The federal government's selection of the Canyonlands National Park area as a possible site to house commercial nuclear waste poses a threat to Utah's economy and the state's tourist industry, he said.

Nielsen is not so adamantly opposed to the proposal "You have to prove it is safe or not," he said.

"If Utah is chosen as one of the sites for the waste, the local economy could stand to gain."

Implant of 2 frozen embryos called for in amendment

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Lawmakers Thursday rejected a recommendation that two frozen embryos be destroyed and passed an amendment calling for an attempt to implant them in a surrogate mother.

The amendment approved by the Upper House of the Victoria state Parliament provides that the embryos be destroyed.

The embryos were left in a legal limbo after the death in a plane crash last year of Mario and Elsa Rios. The Los Angeles couple had been trying to have a baby using so-called test-tube baby techniques at the Queen Victoria Medical Center in Melbourne.

They fled after having the embryos created with ova from Mrs. Rios and sperm from anonymous donors because they did not know what to do with them in case of their deaths.

A scholarly committee was asked to study the matter, and it recommended in early September that the embryos be destroyed. State officials accepted the recommendation, but said nothing would be done for three months in order to allow for further consideration.

Then late Tuesday, the Upper House of the Victoria state Parliament passed a special amendment onto another bill clearing the way for the embryos to be put up for adoption and implanted in a surrogate mother. The bill will now go to the lower house after being approved by the state governor. Women in Australia, the United States, Japan and other nations have asked to be surrogate mother to the embryos.

However, scientists have said the embryos were frozen at a time when the technique was being developed and have cautioned that they might not survive attempts to thaw them and implant them in women.

The first test-tube baby was born in England in 1978. Since then, hundreds of otherwise infertile couples have become parents through the technique, known scientifically as in vitro fertilization.

test integrity. To pass tests of physical strength, one often directs his efforts toward a certain goal, starts with a plan and works to it, he said. "To pass life's character test takes similar effort and consistent work."

Honesty when the stakes are high is to be commended, he said. "He who has become conditioned to dishonesty, lie a little here... every body does it."

"There are some things everybody ought to do," he said. "The place where you are making a change is with ourselves."

Elder Backman said integrity means to treat the stranger that will never be seen again with the same care and concern as the friend seen after.

"This above all, you treat another driver on the street; someone who wants the same parking place you do when it's the last one in the building."

Virtue is not only its own reward, Elder Backman said. "It rewards us in tangible ways every day we practice it."

3 men arrested on charges of DUI and assault

A routine traffic stop Tuesday led to the arrests of three residents and a Green River man. Police say the three were detained on charges of driving under the influence of alcohol, public drunkenness, and assaulting a police officer.

Michael Pope of Green River, Utah, was arraigned Tuesday morning on a charge of driving under the influence of alcohol from a 12:20 a.m. incident on West Center Street. According to a police representative, Pope, 30, was driving with three persons in a car stopped for erratic driving.

The police report states an argument ensued after the car was stopped and Officer Steve Gubord was kicked in the face.

A police representative said officer Gary Hodson and Gubord were in a struggle with the suspect, and each suffered minor injuries.

Gubord was taken to the hospital.

Cougars receive 3 first-place votes

Every Saturday at about 5 p.m. the same questions fill the air at BYU. If the BYU football team wins by 10 points or less fans ask, "Will we drop to No. 6?" If the Cougars win by 20 or more the question is, "How high will we rank?"

Because of the close games the Cougars have been involved in the past two weeks, the first of these two questions has been raised many times.

During the fourth quarter of BYU's 41-38 win over Wyoming, at least one man seated in the stands asked the person sitting next to him, "Do you think we'll drop in the rankings?"

Surprise! This is the highest BYU has ever been ranked, and a national championship is possible — but not likely. It's also great to speculate on how high the Cougars will be this Saturday.

The rankings are just a group's opinion about the nation's football teams. The Associated Press polls sportswriters and broadcasters, while the United Press International takes ball coaches which teams they like best.

It's a popularity contest, and although the Division 1-A champion is chosen from the season-ending polls, they have no real effect on BYU.

Most people have been saying if the Cougars finish in the top three they will be selected to go to another bowl game, maybe the Orange Bowl or the Cotton Bowl.

With a ranking in the top three the Cougars would receive much deserved recognition, but the possibility of playing in a bowl game other than the Holiday Bowl is in the cards.

Brian Binkowski, the public relations director for the Holiday bowl, said, "As far as 1984 is concerned, no way."

Soccercats face Seattle Pacific, end home season

The BYU men's soccer team closes out its home schedule tonight against the defending NCAA Division II champion Falcons from Seattle Pacific.

"By far, Seattle Pacific is the best team we will have faced this year," said Soccercat head coach Jim Dusara.

The Falcons return seven starters from last season's championship squad. The best may be striker Tom Blahous, the MVP in the NCAA tournament. Another Falcon to watch is defender David Witten.

Dusara is concerned about controlling Blahous.

"We will play man-to-man defense and put Glenn O'Neil on Blahous," Dusara said. "Maybe Joseph Ngasa and Richard Pfeifer will have to help out too."

The Cougar coach said Seattle Pacific presents many problems for the Soccercats defensively. "They're hard from behind, and that makes them very hard to mark," he said.

The BYU game plan is to hold the Falcons at bay for the first 30 minutes of the contest. "During the first 30 minutes, we have to hold them and not let them score," Dusara said. "They're a very attacking team. We hope to make them tired by the end of the half."

Cougar will be the key with the Cougar offense. "Our offensive want (forwards) Kevin (Schneider) and Obi (Eze) to try and get to the midfielders to come up and give them support. We don't want to penetrate too quickly."

When we send (Robert) Edwards in, then we will have to be careful and have Robert try to outrun them," Dusara said.

The weather will be a lot cooler than is normal for soccer, but Dusara does not see this as an advantage for the Cougars. "Seattle Pacific is a championship team. We're sure they have played in all kinds of conditions."

Robbie Bosco honored for 2nd week in a row

LITTLETON, Colo. (AP) — BYU quarterback Robbie Bosco, who passed for 354 yards and four touchdowns in a narrow 30-25 victory over Air Force, has been selected Western Athletic Conference offensive player of the week for the second week in a row.

Last Saturday's game against Air Force was the best career performance for the junior from Roseville, Calif.

Wyoming linebacker Bruce Mowry was named WAC defensive player of the week. Mowry returned an interception pass 82 yards for a touchdown, has six unassisted tackles and three assists in the Cowboys' 59-21 rout of New Mexico.

Heimuli strengthens offense with bruising running style

By TOD SANDERS
University Sports Writer

The reason for the success of the BYU football team this year are many.

The defense, Robbie Rocco, the receiving corps and the offensive line are all reasons. But one that deserves mentioning is the emergence of one of the team's few backfield members, Laka Heimuli.

Heimuli was named all-state and student-athlete of the year as a senior at Kahuku High School. Last Friday, before coming to BYU, he signed with the Cougars.

But Heimuli almost took his bruising running style and sure hands to the University of Utah.

"I was recruited out of high school mainly by Arizona State, Hawaii and Utah," Heimuli said. "I was planning on going to Utah because they like to run the ball, but (BYU) Coach (Norm) Chow told me they run the ball at a higher level, too."

Heimuli is one of a number of Hawaiians who have matriculated to BYU from the islands. He said the quality of the football program is the main incentive for coming to Provo.

"The main reason that Hawaiian players come to BYU is because the team is a powerhouse in the WAC," he said.

The toughest adjustment Heimuli had to face when he came to BYU was not the cold or homesickness but trying to figure out the Cougars' sophisticated offense.

"I used to 'Pretty quick,'" Heimuli said. "I learned that offense was the toughest adjustment because it was so complicated. I still make some mistakes, but I feel like I've got the system down pretty well."

The 5-foot-11, 204-pound sophomore's career was cut short by the Pitt game, an injury to his knee.

"The Pitt game was my first game as a starting back," he said. "I scored a field goal and a touchdown, and it really helped to build up my confidence. I know that I can play with anybody now."

Heimuli has not been surprised by the team's success so far this season. "We as a team really believed in ourselves before backfield coach Lance Reynolds.

"Coach Reynolds has prepared me well," he said. "I feel like I can go out and do the job as well as anyone."

The native Hawaiian likes what has been accomplished so far this season.

"I feel good and honored to be playing for a highly ranked team," he said. "But I just try to keep working hard and let it go to my head."

Browns' owner fires coach in a polite way

CLEVELAND (AP) — This was one of the more polite firings in NFL history.

"I've asked my friend and associate, Sam Rutigliano, to step aside as head coach of the Cleveland Browns," said owner Art Modell, who promoted defensive coordinator Marty Schottenheimer to the top spot.

Despite the Browns' 1-7 record and Rutigliano's 10-year record of 47-50, Modell said he agonized over the decision.

Rutigliano represents what I consider to be quality, integrity and character," he said. "There are very few like him in pro sports today."

Rutigliano is also a vice president of the team and has a contract that runs through 1987. Modell said Rutigliano is welcome to remain with the Browns' front office, but Rutigliano said he will wait until January to decide about his future.

"I've been a football coach all my life and that's what I like to do," he said.

LDS musical 'It's a Miracle' returns after successful tour of the countryBy MARIA FARHA
University Staff Writer

"It's a Miracle," the musical that has played a role in the LDS Church's missionary success, will return to give two final performances in Provo, Oct. 27 and 28.

The musical stage play premiered three years ago at BYU Education Week and has been performed continually since, traveling extensively throughout the United States.

"We have touched about 39 states all across the nation," said Gary Lundberg, director of the show, who also plays the role of guardian angel in the production.

Lundberg is a BYU graduate with a degree in business finance and has had vocal training and acting experience.

Mrs. Joy Saunders Lundberg, wrote the script for "It's a Miracle" with help from her cousin Janice Kapp Perry. The script writing entailed about two months of solid work.

But the hard work was worth it. "We've had wonderful responses all across the nation," Joy said.

Perry, a composer, wrote the music for the play.

Perry's husband, Douglas Perry, is stage manager and director of the musical. The Lundbergs and Perry, as Miracle, are also the show's backers.

Miracle Productions is a private, non-profit organization whose proceeds beyond expenses are donated to the general missionary fund of the LDS Church.

The writers are up front with the message they want to send through the play. "The goal of the show is to help people go on missions and get people to go on missions," said Mrs. Lundberg.

Lundberg said the show inspires many LDS Church members to go on missions. "Almost everyone we've seen in the show, one or two elders come up and say, 'I'm on my mission as a result of seeing your show,'" he said.

She explained that the initial idea for the musical came from a stake president who had a question from a friend asking Janice and me to create something that would be motivating," she said. The two women went to work.

She said their husbands were behind them.

"They've made it really happen —

"This is the hardest thing we've ever done in our lives," said Lundberg. But he explained the satisfaction of working with his wife and getting the work worth it. "It's been an all-encompassing thing for the past three years," he said.

The musical was first presented to the BYU screening committee during Education Week screening and was chosen as the only one being shown to be performed at BYU. "One of the directors of Education Week there," Mrs. Lundberg said. "After the show, I asked her, 'What do you think?' and she said, 'It's a nice show.'

Mrs. Lundberg also said many people have traveled long distances to see the musical. "We feel a real sense of responsibility to give them a totally professional show."

Fun-loving Guardian Angel (Gary Lundberg) delights in a playful moment with a confused Elder Draka (Michael Farnes) in the musical, "It's a Miracle." This musical has enjoyed success in 39 states during its three years of performances.

She related a story of a woman who traveled to the U.S. from Australia to see the show. "Many travel two and three hours," she said.

"It's a Miracle" uses music and multi-media style to tell the story. Mormon youth named Michael Draka has developed into an effective missionary for the LDS Church.

Through the use of various methods such as an old-time silent movie, flashbacks fading in and out of the scene, the show has transported the audience back through Draka's life. They review his actions from his childhood preparation to his agonizing decision to either go on a mission or stay home with his girl friend.

The various situations of missionary work are examined not only from the point of view of the young missionary but of those who are affected by the mission and whose lives are changed.

The various scenes of the musical are taken from events that have actually happened to real people.

"We've worked with some very great people, and some great talent," commented her husband.

He said they had a strong cast and some of the children have been replaced because "children grow and change things." Other children have gone into other roles.

Three cast members have played in all the performances. Others have appeared in most of the shows.

Dedication has been a key to the show's success, according to Lundberg. He told of one cast member who has 19 children. "Of the 236 shows, I think he has probably done 210. That's a lot of dedication for one person."

Mrs. Lundberg said everyone involved has jugged school and work schedules around the performances. "We have all night studies on the forums," she said.

The cast members believe in what they're doing, she said. "That's what really makes it."

Two popular songs from "It's a Miracle," "Where is Heaven?" and "In the Hollow Of Thy Hand," were composed by Mrs. Perry.

She is also known for her sacred cantatas, "The Savior of the World" and "Christmas: A Carol Cantata," among other works.

Mr. Lundberg, a songwriter who has been writing for quite a long time, also helped write the LDS primary lessons that are taught all over the world.

'U.S. News' staff enjoys new wealth

WASHINGTON (AP) — For decades, among the best-known faces at employees at U.S. News & World Report were those of the mischievous comma, but now there's a new one: the Internal Revenue Service.

With the sale of the staff-owned weekly magazine to real estate developer Mortimer B. Zuckerman made final for $165 million, at least 20 employees of the Washington-based publication will become millionaires.

Dozens of their co-workers will be able to fatten their bank accounts with tens of thousands of dollars. For some, 15 years of work could translate into a cool half a million dollars.

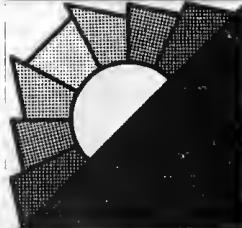

"Yeah, it won't change me," senior editor William Chase said with a smile. "I just richer."

Distribution of the sale proceeds among the magazine's 500 shareholders, with staff employees owning about 70 percent of the stock, depends on length of time with the company.

The board members and one employee will receive "about $500,000, maybe more," I haven't Violinist, pianists to perform

This week's Music at Midday features Nancy Larson, a senior from Sun Valley, Calif., majoring in piano pedagogy, playing Bach's "Partita," Schubert's "Impromptu" and Brahms' "Piano Concerto No. 1." Also appearing on the program is Mark Taylor, a senior from Woodland Hills, Calif., majoring in performance.

Kelly Kooper, a senior from Provo, majoring in piano pedagogy, will play "Prelude" from "La Cathédrale Engloutie."

Now the high cost of medical school won't make your heart skip a beat...

Because you now qualify for a full scholarship that takes the worry out of paying for medical school.

The Armed Forces Health Professions Scholarship Program gives most of your tuition, room and books, and fees. It even pays you more than $600 a month while you attend college.

If you're accepted to the AFHP Program, you'll receive the same AFHP Scholarship from the Army Navy or Air Force — you're committed to serve a Reserve Second Lieutenant or Captain for 45 days of active duty each year.

YES! Tell me how the Armed Forces Health Professions Scholarship Program can help pay my medical school expenses. I understand there is no obligation.
